

Redondo Nabbed for Drunk Driving After Hitting Tracks

When Herbert E. Kunkel of Redondo Beach appeared at police headquarters here early Sunday morning to report he had been in an auto accident he was promptly charged with driving while intoxicated. Kunkel, according to police, drove his machine into the railroad tracks at the intersection of Torrance boulevard and Sartori avenue, slightly damaging the car.

Police noted that his operator's license was restricted to his wearing glasses at all times. When he was booked he was not wearing spectacles, it was said. Kunkel was released later on his own recognizance to appear tomorrow (Friday) morning at 10 o'clock for trial.

Motorists Warned of Probable Jump in Tire Prices

With war conditions causing crude rubber prices to mount rapidly and higher tire prices practically certain to result, thrifty motorists will be quick to appreciate and take advantage of the extra savings afforded by the especially reduced prices now available to them during the tire and tube sale just announced by E. E. Murehison, local manager for the Western Auto Supply company.

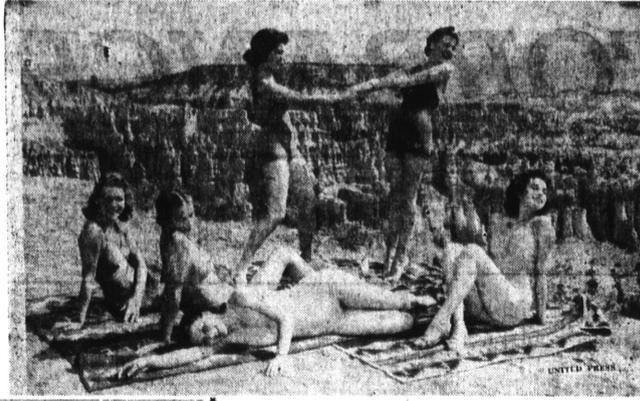

"Crude rubber has advanced 50 percent already and may go higher," Murehison asserts. "Cotton, too, has increased, and since these two are the principal ingredients of tires, it is only natural to assume that retail tire prices may soon reflect these higher costs."

Youth Attacked by Police Dog

Norman Marsteller, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Marsteller, suffered a badly lacerated left fore-arm early last evening when he was attacked by a large police dog. The dog was tied to a car parked in the rear of the Levy apartments and when young Marsteller passed too close to the chained dog, it grabbed his arm. Fifteen stitches were required to close the wounds.

While the dog is not believed to be mad, precautionary measures against rabies were taken and the dog confined for observation.

Walteria Civic Groups Merge; Leaders Named

At its semi-monthly meeting recently, the Walteria Promotional and Entertainment Guild unanimously agreed to a merger with the Walteria Civic Organization. The new unified group will be known as the Walteria Civic Organization and Entertainment Guild.

President J. W. Loughridge of the Civic group appointed President John Minor of the Guild as chairman of the Entertainment committee. Minor, in turn, named Joel Hagberg, master of ceremonies for dances; Gene Andrews and Paul Slonicker as sergeants-at-arms; Mrs. Dessie Crowther, pianist, and Mrs. Henry Conze, assistant secretary-treasurer.

A surprise party for James Posten was celebrated by the organization after the meeting. Refreshments were served and a dance was enjoyed.

Larger Ballot Increases Cost of Nov. 7 Vote

Two more clerks will be employed on each election board in this community and the rest of the county at the special "ham and eggs" election Nov. 7.

This was decided for the county supervisors when the Atkinson oil regulating proposition was placed on the ballot after it had been qualified at Sacramento. Five propositions now will appear on the ballot—the "ham and eggs" plan, a chiro-practic initiative, two bills that would limit interest on small loans and the Atkinson oil bill.

Total expense to the taxpayers for the special election now will be $264,000, as compared with the $228,000 set up in the preliminary budget, and county budget experts said the additional sum would have to be taken out of reserve funds.

Each clerk will receive $5, making $10 more for each of the 140 precincts, or $14,000, according to Chairman Roger W. Jessup of the board of supervisors. There are 4482 precincts in the county but some of them are being consolidated where registration is small.

Tax Strike and Carson Bridge Reports Asked

Two subjects discussed at last Thursday's meeting of the Harbor District Chambers of Commerce in Compton were of particular interest to local residents. These were (1) the Alondra Park assessment district tax strike to force owners of Mattoon Act bonds to scale down their holdings so the county can purchase them and relieve the district for all time of its fantastic tax load; and (2) revival of efforts to bridge the flood control channel in Long Beach and thus open Carson street thru from Torrance to the Santa Ana Canyon.

The Alondra Park tax strike has raised the delinquency to about 57 percent of the total tax bill against the huge district, it was reported. More property owners must refuse to pay their Mattoon Act levies if the objective of scaling down the bond cost is to be reached.

Judge Irving P. Austin, chairman of the Harbor district chambers' legislative committee, was instructed to investigate the tax situation in Alondra Park and report at the next meeting.

Estimated Cost Told

In referring the long-proposed Carson street bridge to the Highway committee, headed by Ray Baldwin, the Harbor chambers once more launched an improvement project which has been supported by communities west of Western avenue but has received scant attention from the city of Long Beach and districts east of the flood control channel. Santa Ana has favored the construction of the bridge but Orange county is not concerned with the cost.

It is believed that a bridge, together with the necessary massive approaches, would cost in the neighborhood of $750,000. Baldwin and his Highway committee were instructed to report at the next meeting on "effective procedure" to follow leading to the future extension of Carson street over the flood control channel.

At the present time, motorists can travel from Torrance on Carson to Santa Fe avenue and then must detour. Carson street resumes again east of the channel in the vicinity of Atlantic avenue.

City Officials Attend School at Convention

City officials of Torrance went "back to school" this week when they attended the annual convention of the California State League of Municipalities at Oakland Monday thru today.

An institute of municipal management to acquaint visiting public officials with new developments in civic administration was held in conjunction with the convention.

Mayor William H. Tolson headed the local delegation, which included Councilmen James Hitchcock, John V. Murray and Tom McGuire, City Clerk A. H. Bartlett, City Treasurer Harriett Leech, City Engineer Leonard Young, City Attorney John E. McCall and Street Superintendent William Gascoigne.

Mrs. Madames Tolson, McGuire, Hitchcock, Young, Bartlett and Gascoigne accompanied their husbands to the bay district gathering.

May Abandon Junior College

high school said Tuesday that, because of a minimum of 125 students were necessary to obtain junior college instructors and a junior college curriculum, he believes it will be necessary to turn the remaining 15 students enrolled into post-graduate courses. This may mean bringing the seventh and eighth grades back to the high school for junior high school classes, he said.

Most of the prospective Community College students who replied to a letter inquiring why they did not return to school this fall, answered that they had made other arrangements or were working. Similar Community College ventures this fall in North Hollywood and San Fernando have already been abandoned for lack of attendance, Elson noted.
